BH E-motion praised by ExtraEnergy

BH's pedelecs City Lux and E-motion Max have been granted the test seals for high quality awarded by the non-profit organisation ExtraEnergy. In addition, two E-motion models from the international manufacturer were rated with five stars and considered to have best price-to-performance ratio by specialist magazine AtoB and electric bike shop Ecitym.

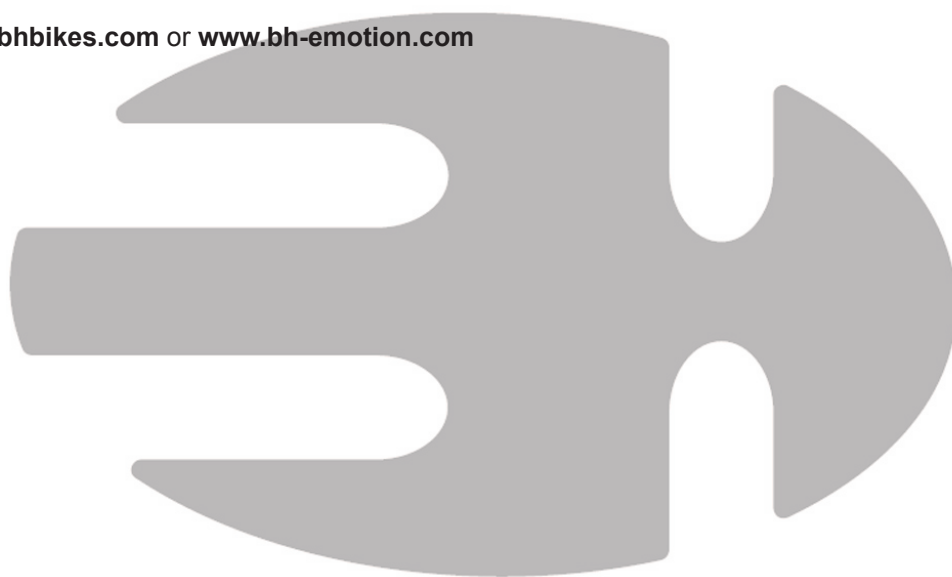

The BH E-motion bikes continue to catch eyes wherever they go. If a few weeks ago they delighted users and caught the attention of trade members at Eurobike (Germany), Interbike (USA), and Festibike (Spain), now they are being praised by publications and organisations focusing on electric powered bikes, or e-bikes.

The E-motion City Lux and the E-motion Max have been rated as "Good" by ExtraEnergy and are now authorised to bear the ExtraEnergy seal of approval. This is the maximum quality guarantee granted by the non-profit organisation after testing a series of e-bike models in 2010. The thorough technical test involved manufacturing quality (frame, motor, battery, controller, accessories) and performance (range, driveability, mobility, comfort, handling). E-motion passed it with flying colours, getting its ExtraEnergy "Good" seal as a result.

Likewise, the pedelec or e-bike publication AtoB has rated two pedal-assist bicycles from BH –the Cross Deluxe and the City Deluxe 700– with five stars. The latter, along with the BH E-motion Sport Max +, has also been considered as the bike with the best price-to-performance ratio by e-bike and pedelec specialist shop Ecitym.

Recognition of BH's pedelecs strengthens the firm's commitment to and care of E-motion, the range that has pushed BH to the top of the Spanish e-bike market and placed it among the leading pedal-assist makers in Europe.
